1. DESIGN BY ACTION

“The future” starts life in our daily encounters with the quizzical, the puzzling and the vexing. Stirred by these, our doubts translate into action—the sprouting vocation to tackle the most trivial challenges and the ability to dream up something different. When these little gyrations join together, they become an engine for change, or what people usually call “the future.” At the Keio University Graduate School of Media Design (KMD), we aspire to be just such an engine by incubating a new generation of innovation leaders who harness the principles of media design.

The human mind, body, and our living spaces, the urban realm and societal systems, the natural environment and the information space: at KMD, we view all of these—and the world itself—through the lens of “media.” Students learn how to create new forms of value that transform society by reexamining its very foundations, then using the power of design to convert ideas into concrete solutions through the trial-and-error of prototyping.

“Real Projects”: Confronting the Realities of Contemporary Society

KMD’s curriculum is defined by the “Real Project,” where students engage with real-world challenges in a four-step process: REFRAME—question fundamental assumptions. MAKE—transform ideas through iterative prototyping. DEPLOY—implement solutions with stakeholders. IMPACT—measure and visualize resulting changes. Along the way, students will learn how to create value within society through collaboration with diverse stakeholders, including business, government, and civic organizations. At KMD, learning extends beyond the classroom; students are granted the opportunity to make society their laboratory.

A Diverse Network: The Catalyst for Innovation

KMD is home to students from across the world, of various backgrounds, specialties, ages, and experiences. You will have the opportunity to meet and collaborate daily with peers from a wide range of fields, including design, art, informatics, engineering, physics, architecture, business, political economy, and the social sciences. Interacting with colleagues from different cultural backgrounds and value systems will broaden your horizons, creating new opportunities for innovation. KMD is a forward-thinking community that draws out its members’ imagination through diversity, incubating dynamic leaders who can put forward novel and world-leading solutions.

Building the Society of Tomorrow through Research

KMD is not just a place of learning. It also plays home to the cutting-edge research that will build the society of tomorrow. KMD’s cross-disciplinary approach spans the fusion of design and technology that generates new products and services, management, which innovates new businesses and ecosystems, and policy, which lays out the infrastructure needed to implement these solutions in our future world. By collaborating with leading corporations, start-ups, government agencies, and civic organizations, KMD works to create new frameworks and concepts, then apply them to society. Our research mission is to bring forth the future of human civilization through the power of innovation. The granular challenges of daily life, the pressing problems facing our cities, regions, and the globe all provide fertile ground for KMD’s community of innovators. With Japan as our base, we work with global partners to drive the worldwide movement towards a sustainable society that can thrive in harmony with nature.

Admissions Policy

Potential students should possess the following qualities:

- (1) Foundational academic ability and specialized knowledge in their research field
- (2) Future-oriented thinking, creativity, and conceptual ability
- (3) Motivation to create value within a diverse society
- (4) Passion and vision to take on new and unexplored fields

Student Screening Process To ensure a broad and inclusive selection of applicants aligned with the student profile listed above, the admissions process comprises a first-stage document screening (including the research plan), followed by a second-stage interview conducted online.

The First Screening entails a review of the application documents. Applicants’ academic level, enthusiasm for research, research skills, and other factors will be comprehensively assessed on the basis of the submitted documents, especially the Research Proposal (refer to “3.6. Research Proposal”), in determining those applicants successfully passing the First Screening.

The Second Screening will comprise an oral exam for applicants who passed the First Screening. Applicants can select either Japanese or English as the language to be used in the screening. The choice of language will have no impact on the results of the Second Screening. The linguistic abilities of persons whose native language is neither Japanese nor English will be assessed during the Second Screening.

The second screening will be conducted online (Zoom). Details will be provided individually after the results of the First Screening are announced. As a rule, applicants will not be able to change the designated date and time of the Second Screening. Applicants should note the following:

1. Ensure you have a functional web camera, headphones, and microphone set-up. Do not use speakers and virtual backgrounds.

Among applicants who have passed the first screening, those who are unfamiliar with using Zoom or who have significant concerns about their internet connection may opt to participate in an access test. Please note that once registered, cancellations or changes to the scheduled time will not be permitted. In principle, you are asked to use the same room for the access test as you plan to use on the day of the examination. If you must use a different room for a special reason, please consult with us about this during the access test.

The majority of scholarships for international students only accept applications from students currently enrolled at university. Information concerning scholarships with active calls for applications will be provided after admission to the university.

We have a few scholarships that accept applications before admission. Please check the Keio University International Center's website for detailed information:

<https://www.ic.keio.ac.jp/en/life/scholarship/>

Regarding the MEXT Scholarship (University Recommendation) and the Keio University "Design the Future" Award for International Students, candidates are selected by the Graduate School of Media Design(KMD) from among applicants to the entrance examination. Please note that only those who are contacted directly by KMD regarding their nomination will be eligible to apply for these scholarships. We regret to inform you that we are unable to respond to individual inquiries regarding eligibility requirements, application timelines, or other related details.

10. Security Export Controls

To ensure that the content of education and research for international students does not interfere with the maintenance of international peace and security, Keio University maintains security export controls based on the Foreign Exchange and Foreign Trade Act. Under these controls, the university confirms in advance whether the permission of the Minister of Economy, Trade and Industry is required before exporting/transferring goods and technologies outside Japan, or before providing international students and researchers in Japan with access to those technologies. As a result, academic or research activities may be restricted, thus students may need to change their academic or research topic as desired.

*For details on security export controls, please refer to the website of the Ministry of Economy, Trade and Industry.
